Coming on the heels of last weekend's extremely successful and well-attended second annual "Feastival" two-day eco-friendly festival at BaseCamp, another environment-oriented, music-driven two-day festival is happening this coming weekend, September 25th and 26th, at Thousand Springs (near Twin Falls).

The 17th annual Thousand Springs Festival (<http://www.thousandsspringsfestival.org>), which will take place this coming Saturday and Sunday, has prided itself since its inception on being a terrific and eclectic showcase not only for various environmental and historical exhibitions from nearby regions (Hagerman, Gooding, Jerome, Bliss, etc), but also for being a terrific and eclectic showcase for various musicians of one sort or another as well -- and this year's lineup is no exception!!

The featured performers include Wood River Valley faves Sheryll Mae Grace (www.myspace.com/sheryllmaegrace and <http://yobi.tv/yobising/semifinalists/view/452>), and Good Ju-Ju (Julia Abrahms, Julie Konton and Sylvia Green) as well as Idaho faves Mike Bush (www.mikebushmusic.com), Shakin' Not Stirred (www.shakintheband.com), Red & Gray (www.cunninghamsbands.com/RedandGray.html), The Jacks (www.myspace.com/thejacksband2009), The Heard (www.theheard.com), Gayle Chapman and Sandy Sanford (www.myspace.com/gaylechapman), The Great Riff All-Stars, the Tony Bowler Group (featuring Emily O'Connor), Keaton & Carter Wilson, and the Bitterbrush Blues Band.

Visit <http://www.thousandsspringsfestival.org/music.asp>) for more details about these various talented musical acts -- and also at <http://www.nature.org/wherewework/northamerica/states/idaho/preserves/art8968.html>) for more information about the Thousand Springs area, including its beautiful Ritter Island region.

And to get more info about the festival itself -- including ticket prices, directions on how to get there, and a list of
